The Peasant King.

BY C. D. STUART.

There is a man of prouder heart, And nobler far I ween, Than sceptered king, or laurel'd chief, Or warrior in his sheen! Who would not give to prince or peer The splendor of his name, Though hosts ran shouting at his heels, The heralds of his fame !

See! yonder in his palace high, His kingdom firm and wide; His throne the cot, his sword the plough, His realm the valley side! His only host, his flocks and herds, And fields of nodding grain, The subjects of his royal rule, The lords of his domain!

He wants no helms, nor iron hands, Nor pomp of waving plumes, Nor vassal knee, nor courtier tread, Nor India's soft perfume! He holds his rein, he drives his steed, And bares his shining blade, And herds are thinned and fields are strewn But not with ruin laid!

What, ho! in court and castle ball, Where kings in revel shout, Are not the words from royal lips Right royally rung out! But on the breeze, the mountain breeze, That shakes the giant rocks, He flings defiance to the foes That threat his fields and flocks.

There is no bribe of wealth, of line, Nor sound of trump or horn, But he would trample to the dust, Or hurl them back with scorn! His only boast, an honest heart, His freedom and a rod, The battle for his kin and home, His altar and his God!

From Mexico .- By the schooner Joaquina, Martinez master, which sailed from Tampico on the 1st inst., and arrived here yesterday, we learn that Gen. Paredes had raised the standard of revolution, and marched upon Mexico with 6,000 men. The administration had no means of opposing his progress, and the probability was that before the vessel sailed he was in possession of the government. The policy of Herrera towards the United States has been the proximate cause of the revolutionthe war-cry having been raised throughout the country, and the mob of soldiers and others excited to that pitch of madness which would induce them to attempt the overthrow of any government that counselled peace with this country. If Paredes has succeeded Mr. Slidell will of course be unsuccessful. and the country will remain in a state of doubtful hostilities, which will be the duty of our government to bring to an immediate termination. The latest dates which the Joaquina brought from the city of Mexico, are to the 13th ult. Later were received some days since by the St. Mary's from Vera Cruz In the papers we find nothing worth translating. The abuse of the government by the opposition journals, and the weak defence made by the papers in the interest of the government, are too familiar to our readers to deserve repetition.

MILLERITE FANATICISM .- A day or two since, a melancholy scene took place in the Superior Court of New York, Judge Oakley presiding, during the progress of a trial against the Harlem Rail New Orleans, but she has been so long Road Company, to recover compensa- detained by ice and low water, that it tion for injuries received by the upsetting of the cars. A witness was called remained. We did not learn that he to the stand to testify, but having become was on board until the boat was about a Millerite, he refused to take the oath to depart, and consequently did not get or affirm, denying in toto the jurisdiction an opportunity of exchanging salutations of all earthly tribunals. Judge Oakley with the great American; but we are inendeavored to reason with him, but he formed by those who visited the boat might as well have talked to the wind, that he seemed in good health and spirits Finally he threatened to com.nit him, looking younger and better than he did but he merely shrugged his shoulders, two years ago. Notwithstanding the saying he could not be kept there long, short stay the boat made at our city, a as he was daily expecting the coming of large number of our citizens had time to the Lord. Finding that he could not be get on board and greet Mr. Clay with induced to take the oath, he was set aside the same warmth and cordiality manifor the present. [Neal's Gazette.

Cruelty to Animals.

The subjoined anecdote on "Cruelty to Animals," is too good to be lost. The Knickerbocker says:

"A great lubberly boy had got a small

Kicks and buffets, despite our remonstrance, repaid him for his demonstrations of love; and then followed another order to go and fetch it. The dog now tried to crawl away, when the boy seized him by the neck, and stood ready to give him another plunge. As he held him for an instant, the poor creature turned his head round as well as he was able, and gazing in his master's face, said so piteously, by his looks, 'Oh, don't do it again!' that nothing but an extra share of inhumanity could have prompted the boy to repeat the outrage. The dumb appeal was disregarded. He was again thrown into the dock, and was most probably injured by the fall, for he floundered about in a circle for three or four minutes. as if bewildered; and afterwards sank has a small star in the forehead, the ends several times before reaching the shore.
